

OUTLINE: PROVISIONAL ADMINISTRATIVE ATLAS OF MAINLAND CHINA

PN 61.1651

1. Brief Introductory Section

- a. Introductory statements regarding format, purpose, sources, etc.
- b. Explanation of administrative structure, translations of terms, romanization problem, key to numbering system, periodic revision, etc.
- c. Table of area and population.

2. About 26 maps of the country and of the several provinces at varying scales, in size approximately 13 x 18 inches. They will consist of one plate of number-letter designations and special district boundaries overprinted on enlarged photocopies of plates from 1956 provincial atlas of China. (These are political maps showing cities and towns, transportation, and hydrography, and containing all important names -- in Chinese -- that are currently in use.)

3. Indexes -- alphabetical, of romanized names of towns, hsien, and special administrative districts -- to the map plates and designators.

~~TOP SECRET - EYES ONLY~~